'The world's largest privately owned airport'

The Biggest Little

Dewey Cable, the patriarch of his family, purchased 60 acres in northwest Upland in 1944, intent upon building a small private airport.

He bought an old bulldozer, plowed a 1,200-foot runway and set up business.

Almost every member of the family has taken an active role in the business' operation since 1944. The facility today has expanded to 110 acres and the Cables proudly bill it as "the world's largest privately owned airport."

"We base that claim on the number of airplanes we have on the ground. We have about 400 based here," said Paul Cable, airport manager.

"I'm very proud of what my family has done with this airport. I started working here at 14," Paul's son, Dave, said. "There really isn't any room to expand, and although we've had several offers from the city of Upland to sell the airport, I don't see anything like that happening."

The elder Cable agrees that his family will probably always run the airport. "There's enough Cables to go around," he said with a laugh.

Ten airport-related businesses are housed at the airfield, located at the corner of 13th Street and Benson Avenue. No commercial planes use the facility.

"Most of our flights are pleasure ones. About 5 percent are business-oriented," Dave Cable said.

Cable Airport was recently used by the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department's aero squadron in its annual program to help the Southern Ute Nation in Durango, Colo. The group departed from the airport in nine planes loaded with medical supplies and food.

At one time Cable Airport had three runways. One was eliminated and another has been reduced in size, kept now mainly for use in emergencies.

The remaining runway, however, can be used by pilots either flying in from the east or west.

Dave Cable said the airport calls landings and takeoffs "operations," with the Upland facility averaging 140,000 per year.

"The number of operations depends upon the weather. Our average is about normal for an airport this size," he said. "We have a good business. There aren't enough private airports around to cater to people. Most pilots think it's too crowded at the Chino and Brackett airports."

Although most of the airport buildings are constructed around the tower, it is not used. Instead, pilots and airport personnel communicate through a monitored radio. "We use the sight and be seen policy here," the younger Cable said with a smile.

Dewey Cable believed Upland residents wanted and appreciated the airport. He also thought they would share his fascination with flying. He built a small wall of rock in front of the tower so people could sit and watch the planes take off, according to grandson Dave.

The Cables have built 70 closed hangars to accommodate those wanting storage space. Renters can keep whatever they want in the buildings, with only one stipulation - the hangar must contain a plane.

The only expansion the airport experiences today is the addition of hangars. The Cables build additional ones every other year in order to keep up with a waiting list of 200 requests.

Noise complaints from nearby neighbors have been the only real problems the airport operators have had to deal with during the years. The airport was constructed in the area before the numerous businesses and apartment complexes, but today all three factions must live side by side.

"Pilots are instructed to try and avoid flying near and over the houses and businesses in the area," Dave Cable said. "We post graduation signs when the Claremont Colleges have ceremonies so the pilots will know. We try and keep the noise down."

Although noise is the number one complaint of neighbors, some also fear plane crashes. The airport did have a major accident about 10 years ago when a plane crashed into some nearby apartments, he said.

Flight patterns have been altered since then to avoid having planes travel directly over populated areas. Every pilot receives a copy of the airport's traffic pattern. □

Airport

Cable Airport (top left) once consisted of one bulldozed runway, but today occupies 110 acres in northwest Upland. Although the facility has expanded since 1945, the Cables don't expect any further growth. Paul Cable, manager, (above) took over the reins at the airport from his father, Dewey, who started the business. The airport is a family-operated business and the elder Cable said he plans to keep it that way. Rob Cable (left) does a routine annual inspection on a 152 Cessna "trainer." On the cover: Small commuter aircraft fly out of Cable Airport daily, helping to add credence to the Cables claim that their facility is "the world's largest privately owned airport."

Black humor lightens up his workday

Gimmicks. They're part of Wayne Lindebaum's life. So when he decided to operate his automotive detailing business out of his hearse his friends didn't bat an eye.

"Sure it's a gimmick. Sort of a billboard on wheels, but business is going well," the 30-year-old Upland businessman said recently.

Lindebaum was working with Armored Transport and was doing car detailing work part time. A back injury, however, caused Lindebaum to look more seriously at his part-time job.

"I'm always thinking about a way to make more money," he said with a smile.

His business, The Last Detail, involves car polishing, hand washing, waxing and interior cleaning. When his business started outgrowing his garage, Lindebaum began searching for a van large enough to hold all his equipment.

He settled, however, for a 1966 Cadillac hearse. The vehicle's three-way electrical table is ideal for handling heavy equipment and the equipment's container — an old-fashioned pine coffin.

"I thought some of the older people might be offended by the idea of the hearse, but most of my customers are the older people," Lindebaum said.

Although having a hearse parked in front of his Patrick Street home block may unsettle some of his neighbors, he said most either like the idea or have gotten used to it.

"Most think it is the neatest thing since ice cream," he Clothing ensembles such as the mock tuxedo and the black felt hat add to the theme of Wayne Lindebaum's business, "The Last said.

Lindebaum's father even took some time to get used to the idea. "My dad used to tell me not to park in front of his house too long or they'll start sending flowers."

Other businesses offer the same deals as Lindebaum, but he will provide curbside service. Anyone wanting their car cleaned at home, merely has to call Lindebaum. He'll be right over in his hearse.

Car cleaning usually takes four to five hours per car. Some can take all day, he said. Lindebaum said he charges between $40 and Detail." The sight of his hearse may be unsettling to some, but Lindebaum said his business is going well.

$125 depending upon the vehicle and the job needed.

"I just don't wash the car. I get out a toothbrush and toothpicks to do the job," Lindebaum said.

A hearse and a pine box may seem morbid to some, but the combination is proving profitable for Lindebaum. The gimmick appears to be working.

If business should slow down, however, Lindebaum already has an alternate plan. "I've been thinking about being a second driver for funeral services if the mortuaries need one."

Upland families experience life with foreign exchange students

Nine American Field Service Chapters in San Bernardino, including Upland, are hosting 23 AFS foreign exchange students this school year.

Upland AFS Chapter is hosting three students: Gianluca Dettori of Italy, whose host is John Luther of Upland; Bettina Viereck of West Germany, whose host family is Mr. and Mrs. George Sellers of Alta Loma; and Pascale Eymael of Belgium, who is being hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sanger of Upland.

Jack Brennan, AFS district representative, said, "Hosting is a lifetime experience for the host family. This year, over 3,000 students are being hosted from abroad in the U.S. The students arrived during July and August and now are involved with learning the culture and about American schools."

AFS was established by volunteer ambulance drivers as a youth exchange program in 1947 following World War II. In the last 35 years, more than 125,000 students have lived with host families in more than 80 countries around the world.

Brennan said, "AFSers from around the world bring a new and fresh perspective on life and the world around them to the host family. Hosting a student for a year gives a family the chance to explore the many facets of another culture in your home. The most important criteria for AFS host families are curiosity about others, understanding about differences and a desire to share and love."

AFS is a non-profit student exchange program active in 2,500 schools and communities in the United States.

The exchange students all are attending community high schools and will be available to speak to groups, starting in January 1985. Community organizations interested in scheduling a student to speak should contact the local AFS chapter president, local high school AFS Club adviser or Brennan, 35195 Elm Lane, Yuclapa, phone number 797-1587.

All local AFS chapters now are receiving applications from American high school students for the Americans Abroad programs. Students must be sophomores, juniors or seniors and should contact their high school counselors.

Fall Festival readied at St. Joseph's

By Terri Tirella

Handmade arts and crafts, a variety of entertainment, games, food and $6,000 in cash prizes will highlight this year's St. Joseph's annual Fall Festival.

St. Joseph's Church, at 887 N. Campus Ave. in Upland, will celebrate its 30th anniversary along with the fund-raising effort on Sept. 21, 22 and 23.

Last year the festival grossed $56,000 and netted $35,000 after meeting expenses for entertainment, dunk tank rental, printing costs and food booth purchases, according to Cecile Quick, spokeswoman for the Festival Committee.

"We built a garage and bought computers for the school, bringing the total to eight computers," she said.

The new garage provides storage for festival equipment. "Moving the festival equipment made room for our youth ministry. The other (storage area) will be used for Helping Hands for the needy (a food distribution program)," she said.

According to Quick, money from this year's profits will be used to enter the parish's sisters into the Social Security program. "To enter the (retirement) program they have to put in back monies," she said.

Other projects earmarked for festival proceeds include recarpeting the schools and purchasing additional property for parking.

Festival money eases the burden of costly upkeep and repairs for the church and school facilities, which would otherwise rest with the parishioners. "Mostly, parishioners come to the festival, but we also draw other members of the community. It (the fund-raiser) helps us stay afloat," she said.

Approximately 500 volunteers are what make the festival run smoothly, according to Quick.

Holding with tradition, each festival day will have a specific designation, with the a fish fry dinner from 5 to 9 p.m. kicking off the festival. Friday night is "Teen Night," featuring D.J. Enterprizes from 7 to 10 p.m. with music, lights and special effects. A drawing for a $500 cash prize will be held after the Fish Fry.

"Family Day" will offer a selection of entertainment which will include the Butterfield Country Cloggers from 1 to 4 p.m., a clown show from 2 to 3 p.m., "Breakin' the Ice" break dancing from 3 to 4 p.m. and the Cattle Company, playing modern country music, from 7 to 10 p.m. Bingo will be played from 2 to 5 p.m. and again from 6 to 9 p.m.

Sunday, "Fiesta Day" will feature "Los Halcones," a Mariachi band at noon mass and Mexican Folkloric folk dancers from noon to 3 p.m. "Aries" will entertain from 4 to 8 p.m. Bingo will be held from 2 to 6 p.m.

The final festival raffle will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday evening and will include a first prize of $3,500. Other cash prizes are $1,000 for second, $500 for third and fourth through eighth place winners receiving $100.

"Handmade items from dolls to crocheted and knitted items and raffles on quilts will be at the arts and crafts booth," said Quick.

Other booths include Sisters' Treasures booth, donated items offered for sale; video games, a coin toss for dishes, a baked goods booth, a ball-roll booth and a wheel of fortune, along with regular carnival fare.

Plants, grown and donated by parishioners, will be sold.

The dunk tank, last year's biggest money-maker according to Quick, will be operated by the parish youth group.

Tickets for drawings or for the fish fry will be available at the church before and during the festival. For more information, call 987-7857.

HOT FEET

Many of us spend the summer months in search of loose-fitting clothes and cool locations to help combat body heat. However, how many of us pay as great an amount of attention to our feet? Our two feet have up to a quarter of a million sweat glands which pour forth about a half-pint of moisture, salts and acids each day. To keep feet as comfortable and healthy as possible, wear absorbant socks and comfortably roomy shoes. Make sure that those shoes are made of porous leather (or nylon for sport shoes) for breathability. Lastly, take a daily foot bath and thoroughly dry your feet. Good foot care is no sweat.

Walking barefoot on sandy beaches can give your feet excellent exercise and stimulation.

Q. Our 4-year-old female mastiff recently had swollen mammary glands that secreted a milk-like substance. The glands seemed to be painful and were warmer than the rest of the dog's body.

Our dog had her last litter of puppies approximately two years ago. She did not have any problems at that time.

Our dog was in season approximately two months ago. What was the most likely cause of our dog's problem?

A. Your mastiff may have had any of several conditions that commonly affect the mammary glands of dogs. These include mastitis, tumors and false pregnancy, also called pseudopregnancy.

Mastitis usually follows traumatic injury to the mammary gland, accompanies severe uterine infections, or follows weaning of puppies. You did not indicate that any of these have occurred recently in your dog.

Mammary tumors appear as single or multiple swelling in one or more glands. As the tumor ages, it generally enlarges.

Although it is impossible to state the exact cause of your dog's problem, it is most likely she had a pseudopregnancy. A false pregnancy usually occurs two to three months after the dog was last seen in heat. The most commonly noticed signs include mammary gland development, lactation and personality changes.

In some dogs there are signs similar to those observed normally just prior to a normal whelping.

These include nervousness, excitability, trembling, panting, restlessness and attempts to build a nest in a quiet place. Later behavior is similar to that normally seen during the nursing period following whelping. Toys, bones and other objects, or puppies and kittens, if available, are mothered by the affected dog.

Milk may be present in the mammary gland for two weeks or longer. The degree of swelling of the mammary glands will vary. The glands may be warmer than the rest of the dog's body and

Did you ever get to sit quietly with a picture album 40, 50 or even 60 years old? The photographs attached to those yellowed pages present a series of accurate images of life in those times.

Not all the pictures, you'll notice, were of people posed stiffly against painted backdrops — many times there were street scenes showing not only the architecture, but the landscaping, the methods of private and public transportation (remember seeing horse-drawn trolley cars or the electric version with the large arm extending up to the overhead power lines?).

And that's not all those old pictures reveal. They also show the fashions of the day, sometimes our toys (ever notice a young boy with a stick and a hoop?) our relationships with each other (I don't believe you ever saw couples kissing on a street corner in the early 1900s). If you look carefully at any signs in the pictures, it may even be possible to get some idea of the products that were being used as well as the phraseology used to promote them.

As you can see, there's a wealth of information to be gleaned from those old photographs — information that surely would be interesting to historians as well as to those folks who design sets for period motion picture productions. Then too, all those old pictures might just be fuel to fan the curiosity of anyone wanting to take a nostalgic trip into the past.

But the point to all this about old photographs is the outlook of the photographer — the person who actually took time to take the pictures that tell us so much about the past.

Even though I have no way of knowing what those photographers were thinking about — I suppose I would like to imagine they all had some idea the world — their world — would change one day, and that folks living 50, 100 or even 200 years from then might be curious about the lives their grandparents lived.

What I'm trying to tell you is that many of the pictures you're taking now might someday be historically significant. Yes, I'm really serious — just look around you at all the evidence of interest in the past. Remember, for example, a book called "Roots," and how it touched off a wave of interest in researching family backgrounds.

Admittedly, at this point in time, photography is still less than 150 years old but if you were trying to establish a genealogical family line, wouldn't it be interesting to see photographs of your relatives who perhaps lost their lives on the Lusitania (1915); or helped construct the Panama Canal (1904-13); or watched Henry Ford road test his first automobile (1893); or took part in the Oklahoma Land Rush (1889)?

When you begin to consider all the major and minor events that have occurred in just your lifetime alone, it becomes easier and easier to recognize the potential historical value of those pictures you've been taking.

COINS

By Gary L. Palmer
Copley News Service

Some numismatists like to collect coins bearing similar designs such as wildlife, flowers, ships, etc.

If the design happens to creatures of the deep, hobbyists now have a chance for a nice "fishing expedition."

The last of the 12 coins of the World Fisheries Collection, struck for the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, are now available from the British Royal Mint.

The final two coins are from Uruguay and Sao Tome et Principe. That latter country would be a good question for Trivial Pursuit.

For those who don't know where Sao Tome et Principe is — I sure didn't — it's a country off the west coast of Africa, comprising two islands, Sao Tome and Principe. Formerly a Portuguese territory, the tiny nation of 372 square miles has a population of 75,000.

With the exception of the Portugal 250-escudos coin designed by Jose Aurelio, the entire collection was the work of Australian designer Stuart Devlin.

The coins are truly unique, featuring a stylized water pattern upon which a fish, boat or trap relevant to each country is superimposed, giving remarkable continuity to the series.

The Uruguay coin is a 20-peso piece with the obverse bearing the national coat of arms and the date and denomination.

The reverse features a fish indigenous to the country's waters. Ready for this Trivial Pursuit answer? It's the Merluccius Merluccius Hubbsi, commonly referred to as the "Merluza."

Around the perimeter is the inscription CONFEREN CIA MUNDIAL DE FAO 1983-84 SOBRA PESCA and the FAO Fisheries logo.

The Sao Tome et Principe coin is a 100-dobras piece, also featuring the national coat of arms on the obverse. The reverse depicts a fisherman casting his net together with the inscription FAO CONFEREN CIA MUNDIAL DE PESCA — FAO World Fisheries Conference, the dates 1983-84 and the FAO Fisheries logo.

The complete 12-coin collection is available in silver proof format for $548 or in a cupronickel version for $69.

The unique collection of coins embodies the heritage of countries oceans apart, yet sharing the common objective of using the seas to the benefit of all.

Orders and inquiries should be addressed to the British Royal Mint, c/o Barclays Bank of New York, N.A., P.O. Box 2570, New York, NY 10163.

And if coins with flowers on them intrigue you, Singapore has issued one to commemorate 25 years of nation building.

A $5 coin, available as a .925 fine silver proof or in copper-nickel, depicts Singapore's national flower, Vanda Miss Joaquim on the reverse and the coat of arms of the republic on the obverse, along with the legend 25 YEARS OF NATION BUILDING.

The silver coin is $30 while the copper-nickel one costs $5. The prices include postage and handling. Both coins are legal tender and were struck by the Singapore Mint.

To order coins send a check, money order or bank draft in U.S. funds to Singapore Mint, 249 Jalan Boon Lay, Singapore 2261.

'Wanda' leaps to jamboree victory

By Josie Garza

"Wanda" from Etiwanda and "Jeremiah 2" jumped their way to victory as the winning frogs of the two-day third annual Rancho Cucamonga frog jumping jamboree.

A total of 18 web-footed contestants vied for top honors in two divisions as 200 spectators looked on at the frog jumping finals held Sunday at Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona.

Almost anything goes at the competition where "frog jockeys," in hopes of winning, do a lot of clapping, yelling, screaming, and cheering their amphibious friends on.

For the third year in a row, Cheryl Perdew of Rancho Cucamonga emerged victorious from the competition in the senior, 13 and over division.

Perdew's frog, "Wanda" from Etiwanda jumped a whopping 4 feet, 11.5 inches.

Having the first runner-up frog jumper in the senior division was Heather Burns whose frog was simply known by its business sponsor, "Tri-City Painting" of Rancho Cucamonga.

Burns' frog also jumped 4 feet, 11.5 inches forcing a jumpoff for the coveted grand champion trophy.

In the jumpoff, Wanda jumped 4 feet, 4.5 inches while her rival jumped 3 feet, 2 inches.

Jan Irvin's adopted frog sponsored by "Winter Circle Awards" of Upland took second runner-up honors in the senior division with a jump of 4 feet, 10.5 inches. Irvin had taken the lead in the preliminary competition held Saturday at Vineyard Park.

Contestants were able to "adopt" a frog prior to the annual frog jumping jamboree preliminaries if they so wished. Most frog jockeys in the competition took advantage of the adoption service. The city obtained the frogs from a biological laboratory in Escondido.

Coming in third in the senior division was Roj Campbell's adopted frog sponsored by "Larry's R-V" of Rancho Cucamonga.

In the junior division, Jeremiah Butts of Rancho Cucamonga took home the grand champion trophy with his local leaper, "Jeremiah 2." The term "local leaper" signifies that the frog jumper is home raised and not adopted through the Rancho Cucamonga community services department.

"Jeremiah 2" jumped 4 feet, 9.5 inches.

First runner-up in the junior division was "Fred the Frog" jockeyed by Andrew Kemble. Fred jumped 3 feet, 8.5 inches, followed by "Frank the Frog" jockeyed by Nicholas Schmitt.

Last year the adopt-a-frog program was almost completely cancelled when a load of prospective adoptees died of heat exposure en route to the competition. "Q-bert," the sole frog surviving the trip was adopted by Shanna Jackson.

LIBRARY NEWS

By Patricia Castenada
Principal Librarian

"Women's Diaries of the Westward Journey," edited by Lillian Schlissel, is among several books recently published on the subject of the settling of the West from the pioneer woman's point of view. This new material consists primarily of diaries of pioneer women who made the trip west between 1845 and 1865.

The diaries are now beginning to find their way from attics and bookshelves of pioneer descendants to the hands of scholars who edit and analyze them in preparation for publication. There is great expectation that much new material will yet turn up.

The diaries uniformly paint quite a different picture of the westward journey than that we get from textbooks, or movies, or even books on the subject which emphasize the male experience of the trail. They tell of pregnant women riding or walking up vertical trails, giving birth during rain storms in leaky covered wagons, women with small children, trying to care for them and cook over an open fire, keep the family clean, keep moving, care for livestock, all at the same time. The diaries tell of the deaths of neglected children, and accidents and sickness with no medical care. "There was no time to care for the sick and the dying. Fear of Indians forced families to hurry along. The cattle needed water and grass. The provisions might give out if one lingered. Always, delay for the dying threatened the life of the living."

It was common in emigrant families for the father to be gone for long periods of time, scouting a trail, looking for gold, hunting, or searching for homesite. This required the women and children to keep going on their own under the most difficult of circumstances.

The diaries are full of accounts of women struggling on their own with large families of seven or eight children. Even worse, there are accounts of families of children whose parents have died and who are thus left to make the journey on their own.

Sometimes circumstances did not allow for them to be properly cared for by other families. The rest of the train might itself be struggling to survive. One diarist wrote, "... All along the road up the Platte River was a graveyard; most any time of day you could see people burying their dead; their names carved on them ... One family I can't forget; the mother was sick, had to be helped up the bank of the Cascade River and her little child was dead and laid out on the bank." Another wrote, "The road from Independence to Fort Laramie is a graveyard."

The women were religious about recording the graves they passed by the side of the road, as though their taking note was the only way of consecrating the ground and remembering the dead who had to be left behind.

"As ritual caretakers of the sick and dying, the women saw the real enemies of the road as disease and accident. It is in women's diaries that we are reminded of the heaviest emigration of the Overland Trail was accomplished during years of cholera epidemic. As travelers hurried across the continent to the 'rag towns' of California and Nevada in order to pan clear streams for gold, cholera swept over the Trail ... The women write of the deaths and burials. They tell of typhoid, mountain fever, measles, dysentery and drownings. The women knew that disease and accident killed more emigrants than did Indians. The women, whose job it was to care for the dying, carefully noted the cost of the westward movement in human life ... The women were the actuaries of the road, tallying the miles with the lives that were lost."

One of the main points made by Schlissel is that there is a fundamental difference between the diary accounts of the journey written by men and women.

Men saw the trail as a magnificent adventure, a test of their manhood, a chance to advance themselves in life through the acquisition of free land. They wrote of the fierce Indians, and when they mention the deaths on the trail, the account is often without detail and centers on the numbers of people dead.

The women diarists saw the Indians as providers of meat and fish their farmer husbands were often very awkward about hunting. They tell of the graves they pass, their size, whether it was a child or adult, and mention names when they can. For men the trip was an enhancement to their lives, but for a woman, especially a woman who might be pregnant or the mother of small children, the trip was an uprooting, and a dangerous undertaking. And often enough she had not had a part in the decision to emigrate.

Women's Diaries of the Westward Journey makes it very clear just how dangerous the Overland Trail could be. The accounts of the deaths of children are especially poignant. Here is a typical example:

"One of the emigrants on our party was named Crowley. He had lost several members of his family by death while crossing the plains, and at one of our camps ... a daughter, Martha Leland Crowley, died ... They buried her beneath a big plane tree on the banks of a small may be painful when touched. A white discharge from the vulva may be present.

Swelling of the abdomen as if pregnant is very common. Abdominal contractions that mimic those of whelping occasionally occur.

Many bitches with pseudopregnancy will have digestive upsets like those seen occasionally during the weaning period. These may include vomiting and diarrhea.

The signs of pseudopregnancy have also been seen in dogs spayed three to four days earlier. This usually only occurs in dogs spayed shortly after being in heat. With the exception of having puppies, pseudopregnant dogs look and act like they were pregnant and are about to or just have whelped.

Apparently, there is no breed or age of dog which is more likely to become pseudopregnant. It has been observed in 6-month-old dogs following their first heat period and in dogs over 7 years old. Most dogs presented for treatment are between 2 and 6 years of age.

Although there is no apparent breed disposition, there does seem to be certain families of dogs that are more susceptible.

It is not uncommon for bitches to have recurrences after each heat period. Usually these bouts of pseudopregnancy do not affect later fertility.

Veterinarians make the diagnosis of pseudopregnancy based on the animal's reproductive history and physical examination. Blood counts and X-ray techniques are often used to differentiate this condition from actual pregnancy or severe uterine infections.

Treatment of pseudopregnancy varies with the severity of the particular case. Most mild cases do not require treatment.

In dogs with recurring or severe false pregnancies, spaying is usually the best solution.

LAST YEAR WE COULD HAVE SAVED 50 MILLION PEOPLE A TRIP TO THE EMERGENCY ROOM.

Back in the olden days (a whole year ago), when you had a minor emergency or illness, you'd rush over to the hospital emergency room.

And wait. And wait.

And waiting with you would be a lot of other sick people. And then, as if you hadn't already done so, you'd pay for the experience. A nice hefty sum.

Well, medicine has finally changed. So has emergency treatment. Today there are the N.M.E. Instant Care Medical Centers. They're fast, high quality, and affordable. And you can take advantage of them right near you.

CONVENIENT EMERGENCY TREATMENT FOR MOST ILLNESSES AND ACCIDENTS.

The N.M.E. Instant Care Medical Centers are a new concept. So you probably haven't heard much about them yet. What they are, is a network of convenient neighborhood centers where you can go for expert treatment of most illnesses, injuries or accidents. (However, for major life threatening situations, you would still go to a hospital emergency room.)

N.M.E. Instant Care Medical Centers are all over the nation. They're open 16 hours a day. From 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. 7 days a week. Every day of the year.

LITTLE WAITING. NO APPOINTMENTS.

At an N.M.E. Instant Care Medical Center, you won't spend your whole day reading magazines in the waiting room. Because there's hardly any waiting at all. We're a walk-in center. No appointments are needed. So you can come in at your convenience, not ours.

When you do you'll be seen immediately by the doctor, who will treat you with care and concern. If you need to be hospitalized, we'll see to it that you are and that you're well taken care of.

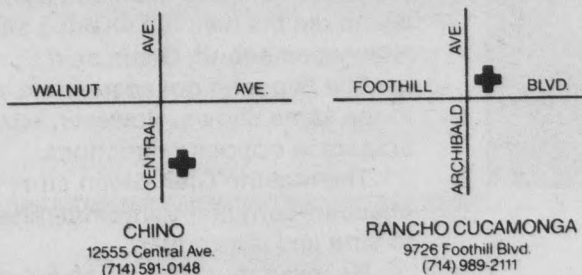

HIGH QUALITY MEDICAL CARE AT ABOUT HALF THE COST.

For all this, you'll pay about half of what you would pay at an emergency room. Including medical care, x-rays and other tests. For your convenience, we accept credit cards as well as cash or checks. We will even assist you in filing your insurance forms.

N.M.E. Instant Care Medical Centers. We know how to treat more than an illness. We know how to treat a person.

THE GLEN GLENN

A singer named Elvis Presley became famous in the '50s by gyrating his lower body while he performed.

Glen Glenn was another singer shaking his hips during that time.

"The Glen Glenn Story," an album released in 1982 features the 1950's rock-a-billy songs recorded by a 20-year Rancho Cucamonga General Dynamics employee.

Featured on the album are "Laurie Ann" and "Everybody's Movin'" the two biggest "hit" songs of singer Glen Glenn, known at work and at home by his real name Glen Troutman.

During the mid-'50s, Glenn's career took him to shows featuring the rock-a-billy sounds of Memphis and Hollywood. As Presley shook his body as he sang the Memphis sound, in a separate act, Glen Glenn did his own hip shaking singing the Hollywood sound, Glenn said.

The two men got acquainted when they appeared in the same shows. However, fate took the two singers in opposite directions.

The real-life Glen Glenn story is the tale of a Missouri-born and California-raised man who loved to sing and play guitar.

He loved music so much he said goodbye to his parents living in San Dimas and took his talent on the road at 18.

Glenn went around the country appearing in music shows singing rock-a-billy, which was the forerunner of rock 'n' roll, he said.

He recorded several 45 single records, appeared in numerous live music shows and even was featured regularly as Glen Trout on the TV music programs of "Cal's Corral" and "Ozark Jubilee."

After Glen Trout took the name of Glen Glenn when he recorded "Laurie Ann" and "Everybody's Movin'," Uncle Sam drafted the clean-cut slim singer into the Army.

Glenn was in the early part of his two-year stint in Fort Ord back in June 1958 when he heard "Everybody's Movin'" played on the radio.

As a soldier in the military, Glenn was unable to promote the hit single.

The song sold thousands of records, he said.

Glenn had been restationed in Honolulu, Hawaii, and was in the Schofield Barracks when he heard his second hit single, "Laurie Ann," played on the radio there.

"Laurie Ann," the biggest seller of Glenn's singles sold 800,000 copies before his discharge from the service in December 1959, he said.

Glenn said it made No. 1 on the best selling record charts in Honolulu.

"This was the first song with a girl's name made in the '50s. This was the first one. I did it first. After this was a hit, Buddy Holly made 'Peggy Sue,'" Glenn said.

STORY

As the record continued to stay on the top 10 single record charts, Glenn said he became frustrated because of his several unsuccessful attempts to obtain permission to promote the song.

TV personality Dick Clark even unsuccessfully attempted to get Glenn on his show, "American Bandstand," Glenn said.

"And you know, the company commander wouldn't let me go. It would have been good for the record. Being on the show was good for 250,000 in record sales," Glenn said.

"I was losing thousands of dollars by not doing the show. It was a bad time for me. The Army hurt me a lot because I couldn't travel to make personal appearances."

Having the hit singles helped Glenn in another way — in the military. While at first Glenn had been a regular soldier having to do the infamous militaristic "crawling in the mud stunts," he later became known because of his music and was asked by the Army's Special Service to perform for his fellow soldiers in Hawaii, Korea and Japan. He jumped at the chance.

"I got tired of crawling out there in the mud. I'd rather sing songs," he explained in his Ontario home.

"Laurie Ann" was off the charts when he was released from the Army and returned to California. In a short time, circumstances in his career had changed drastically.

Frustrated, Glenn sought employment as a stock setup man in dispatching and material supplies at General Dynamics in 1960. He's been there since.

"I was a little bit disgusted because I couldn't get the bookings I wanted. I continued playing over the years on weekends."

It was on one of those weekend performances in Pomona in 1961 that Glenn met his wife of 23 years, the former Mary Forrester of Ontario.

"I just went over to him and said 'Hi, why aren't you with Fred Maddox anymore?'" Mary Troutman said, referring to the time Glenn had been featured with the Maddox Brothers on the TV show, "Cal's Corral."

Three months later they were married. Together, the Troutmans have two children, Teri and Russell.

Mary said her favorite songs by Glenn are "Everybody's Movin'" and "Susie Green from Abilene."

Over the years, Mary said she has tried to get her husband back to doing shows. "They want him to play in France and England," she said.

Glenn said he has received some offers to perform in Europe but he hasn't accepted any to date.

The singer's latest album, "Everybody's Movin' Again," recently released in London on the ACE record label will be available in this country at Tower Records in a month or two, he said.

"Everybody's Movin' Again" is a sequel of sorts to Glenn's hit single. The album answers the question, "Whatever happened to...?"

Glenn's latest recording effort features his singing voice today. Appearing on the album with Glenn is Gary Stewart on lead guitar and Ernie Lopez on drums. Stewart performed with Glenn back in the '50s.

"If the new album goes well, I might have to go. I've had many letters from over there. The '50s are big in Europe. It's bigger over there," said Glenn, 49.

In the future, Glenn said he would like to see the group, The Stray Cats, record "Everybody's Movin'," one of the songs he wrote himself.

It being seven or eight years since his last concert, Glenn said before he takes a step on the stage again he feels he needs to practice his hip shaking.

"It looks like we might do it, and then we might not."

So somewhere along the way, don't hesitate to point your camera at the "passing parade." It's all right if you don't have the people in your pictures; it's all right if the scene doesn't have any particular sentimental value; and above all, it's all right even if some of your less well-informed friends make fun of you for "wasting" film.

Those photographs you take of the life around you might be important to someone someday.

Another case in point. If you watch any cable television you've certainly been exposed to many of the fine nature shows that appear several times each week. Those shows are really a great deal more than fine family education or entertainment — they are also historical documentaries.

Something future generations will be able to review in instances where the filming area has become ecologically unable to support that species, for example — or in instances where the worst happens and the species becomes extinct.

You've never seen any extensive photographic coverage of the passenger pigeon, have you? Well, that's exactly what I mean. When a species is gone, it's too late.

Moreno Valley presents Scots test

Defense has been the backbone of Upland High School football the past few years, and the 1984 Highlanders are following suit.

In opening with a 1-1 record, Upland has given up just 19 points. The Highlanders held Northview to 72 rushing yards in a 12-6 win a week ago.

However, Upland's ability to stop the run will receive a severe test on Friday night at 7:30 when the Highlanders host Moreno Valley at Highlander Stadium.

Upland will try to stop Jeff Fassett, who romped for 214 yards and four touchdowns in a 40-0 win over Chino last week. The junior running back had 222 yards in Moreno Valley's opener, a 31-14 loss to Cajon.

Fassett's numbers (436 yards on 47 carries for a 9.8 yards-per-carry average) make him one of the leading ground gainers in CIF. They also make him a headache for Guest and Co.

Upland's team rushing total a week ago was 150 yards, certainly modest by Fassett's standards. But the figure was up from the week before, when the Highlanders amassed 106 yards.

The backfield pair of tailback Mike Ulloa and Buddy Mitchell combined for 142 of last week's Upland rushing yards; Ulloa ran for 81 yards on 24 carries while Mitchell gained 61 yards in 14 tries. Each runner scored a touchdown on a one-yard run.

Quarterback Greg Fiorindo hit on 10 of 20 passes for 81 yards to complement the ground attack.

Fun time at Upland Hill CC

Bill Arthur ran into trouble on the first hole at Upland Hills Country Club (top) last Saturday during the Scotch Ball Tournament sponsored by the men's golf club. Bob Cox had no trouble in driving down the third tee (right).

If you're a golfer, Steve Brown of Upland Hills Country Club thinks he has a deal for you.

The director of golf at the newest public course in the West Valley is inviting golfers to join the men's club for the year. For a one-time fee, golfers can play free for the year.

The UHCC membership drive continues, with over 350 registered as of Monday. There are still about 100 openings remaining, with individual memberships going for $500 per year, $750 per couple.

In men's club action last Saturday, the teams of George Morrow/Dave Cardin and Dave Hakel/George Caviness tie for top low gross honors at 73 in the men's club Scotch Ball Tournament.

Taking first team low net was the duo of Phil Vonk/Jim Whatley with a 57, followed by the team of Clair Lair/Gene Rice, in with a 58½.

For additional information about joining UHCC, contact the pro shop at 946-4711.

Bandits prep for CSL soccer play

The Bandits girls soccer team of Upland will be entered in the Gold section of the Coast Soccer League with a third consecutive Walnut Valley Tournament title under their belts.

To win the tourney, the Bandits recorded four straight shutouts. The Bandits have won the Division II girls under 16 all three years the event has been held.

In addition to the 2-0 win over the Tri City Thunderbolts for the title, the Bandits also posted wins over the Upland Express (4-0), Rainbown Express 70 (2-0) and Palos Verdes Pirates (3-0) in the tourney.

Andy Gessig and Mark Johnson coach the team, which is comprised of girls who play on other teams. The 84-85 Bandits include five members of last year's team — Linnette Guidera, Karen Anderson, Tina Remlinger, Jennifer Loula and Stacia Finley.

Dana Preston, Leslie Ransom, Lanette Ceballos, Jody Uribe and Stacy Simpson join the Bandits from the Alta Loma Lasers; Upland United members include Michelle Sawtell and Jodi Saucedo; Erica Finley and Autumn Unck are from the Rainbow Express; Kim Gessig and Andrea Hurley are from the Orange Destroyers.

Rose Bowl ticket drawing set Nov. 1

PASADENA — College football fans will have an opportunity to purchase two tickets to the 1985 Rose Bowl, if their postcards are drawn on Nov. 1.

The annual drawing is the only public sale of tickets to the game, which pits the Pac 10 and Big 10 football champions. The game is traditionally a sellout.

To enter the drawing, postcards must include name and address and mailed to Rose Bowl Ticket Drawing, Pasadena, CA 91184-0085. Postcards must be postmarked before Oct. 15.

A total of 1,750 cards will be drawn for the opportunity to purchase a pair of $35 tickets. The drawing will serve as the first official function for the 1984 Rose Queen and her court.

Additional information is available by calling the 24-hour, all-year Rose Bowl hotline at (818) 449-ROSE.

Teacher looks to the sky; hopes to be the first civilian astronaut

By Josie Garza

Pat Noel, Etiwanda High School teacher, says she loves science so much she'd consider going just about anywhere because of it — even into outer space.

With President Reagan's asking for a teacher to be the first civilian in space, Noel is thinking about applying.

However, before making a decision, Noel said she plans to speak with her husband about it.

Of course, if Noel decides to apply for the one teacher post she will face stiff competition from educators in a variety of disciplines nationwide.

"I would like to, but I don't know if I'd have a chance. I think it would be exciting. I would hope they would send up a science teacher. I think it's time for that," she said.

She said there could see the merit of sending up a teacher who is a poet or writer, someone who could describe the experience.

Noel is a master science teacher in the UCLA Science Project funded through the Office of Academic Institutional Programs established two years ago.

As a participant in the project, Noel will spend her Saturday mornings this fall giving science teacher workshops on her specialty, chemistry.

She will be among a group of educators offering teachers from the greater Los Angeles area ideas for teaching science to high school students, then be a featured workshop speaker Nov. 30 at a regional conference of the National Science Teachers Association in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Noel said she applied for the project because the idea of science teachers helping teach fellow teachers how to effectively teach science interested her.

She will give her first workshop this fall on Sept. 29.

Noel earned her bachelors degree in chemistry from Immaculata College in her home state of Pennsylvania.

Coming to California 17 years ago with her husband, Mark and daughter, Kathy, Noel received her teaching credential from Cal Poly Pomona and her masters degree in education from Claremont Graduate School.

For the past 14 years, Noel has been employed with the Chaffey Joint Union High School District. Her first 12 years were spent teaching at Montclair High School.

Noel requested a transfer to Etiwanda High School before it opened last school year.

"I thought it would be exciting to get on the ground floor of a new school and to be able to participate in setting up the science programs," explained Noel.

During summer she has conducted chemical tests on water and industrial waste while working on her bachelor's degree.

"It sounds awful, but it was exciting. It got me hooked on science," Noel explained.

Noel said she enjoys teaching science.

"I think it's the creativity of the job. No two days are exactly the same and no two classes come up with the same ideas," she said.

"They usually come to the same conclusion in experiments but their approaches are totally different."

Science keeps Noel's interest because it's a discipline that's constantly changing.

"I like the excitement. The fact that nothing is cut and dry. There's always something new happening."

Women's CPA group sets its next meeting

The Inland Counties Chapter of the American Women's Society of Certified Public Accountants will hold its next meeting on Sept. 26, beginning with a 6:30 p.m. social hour, at the Red Lion Inn in Ontario.

Joseph Sievers, an author of five books of contemporary poetry, will be featured speaker at the dinner. An ex-Green Beret, Sievers has been featured in People Magazine, the Los Angeles Times and the Hearld Examiner during the past year.

Sievers will read from his writings, which relate his experiences of hitchhiking

45,000 miles around the United States after his discharge from the Army.

Anyone interested in attending should call 985-7286 or write AWSCPA - Inland Counties, care of Helene Blumner, 846 W. Foothill Blvd, Upland, 91786. Reservations must be made by Sept. 24.

stream which they christened Grave Creek ... The oxen were corralled over her grave so that Indians would not dig her up and get her clothing."

There are many accounts like this, and there are several instances where a mother buries one child and within hours is giving birth to another.

The real story of the "taming of the West" is told in these diaries and many others like them. We, as a culture, have not yet perceived or accepted the realities of those times, partly because we are still too close to them. As we come to know more about what our ancestors had to endure the values we inherited from them will seem more important because of the price they paid.

Unfortunately, the true stories of the pioneers don't have much to do with our popular notion of them as participants in an elaborate camping trip where things sometimes got a bit rough, but where everyone essentially had a great time and the endings were usually happy. "Women's Diaries of the Westward Journey" is a powerful antidote to that notion, and it is a tribute to the people it portrays.
